

Community Guidelines

Hi there! Bujulo is currently in early beta and only few users will be accepted to join our platform before we open up to a broader audience. We created these Community Guidelines to support our mission by encouraging the broadest range of self-expression while making sure users can use our services safely every day.

- These Guidelines apply to all content on Bujulo — and to all users and content creators, equally. We won't take action against content when it is newsworthy and relates to a matter of political, social, or other general concern to our community — as long as that newsworthy content is factual.
- We've done our best below, and in our Terms of Service, to set out specific rules of the road for what content we allow on Bujulo. But it's hard to anticipate every situation that might come up. We want Bujulo to be a safe and positive experience for everyone. We reserve the right to decide, in our sole discretion, what content violates that spirit and will not be permitted on the platform.

- Share only photos and videos that you've taken or have the right to share. You own the content you post on Bujulo. Remember to post authentic content, and don't post anything you've copied or collected from the Internet that you don't have the right to post.
- Post videos that are appropriate for a diverse audience..
- Follow the law. Bujulo is not a place to support or praise terrorism, organized crime, or hate groups.
- We have zero tolerance when it comes to sharing sexual content involving minors or threatening to post intimate videos of others.
- We want to foster a positive, diverse community. We remove content that contains credible threats or hate speech, content that targets private individuals to degrade or shame them, personal information meant to blackmail or harass someone, and repeated unwanted messages. We do generally allow stronger conversation around people who are featured in the news or have a large public audience due to their profession or chosen activities.
- It's never OK to encourage violence or attack anyone based on their race, ethnicity, national origin, sex, gender, gender identity, sexual orientation, religious affiliation, disabilities, or diseases. When hate speech is being shared to challenge it or to raise awareness, we may allow it. In those instances, we ask that you express your intent clearly.
- Be thoughtful when posting newsworthy events. We understand that many people use Bujulo to share contents and newsworthy events. Some of these issues can involve graphic videos. Because so many different people and age groups use Bujulo, we may remove videos of intense, graphic violence to make sure Bujulo stays appropriate for everyone.
- We understand that people often share this kind of content to condemn, raise awareness or educate. If you do share content for these reasons, we encourage you to caption your video with a warning about graphic violence. Sharing graphic images for sadistic pleasure or to glorify violence is never allowed.

Legal Practices for Use of Bujulo

- Users should manage their own accounts for one-on-one chats.
- Messages should only be sent to people who have contacted you first or have requested you contact them via Bujulo. It's best to give people your phone number so they can message you first. If people provide their phone number, message them in ways they would expect. For example, explain who you are, and how you got their phone number.
- If a user asks you to stop messaging them, you should remove the user from your address book or refrain from contacting them again.
- Think twice before forwarding your messages to people.
- Add people to chat you only know personally.

- Bujulo is not responsible for the content posted by the users.
